WOUNDED AND CAPTURED

Private Lewis N. Mears Wounded in Wrist and Taken by Germans at Argonne Forest

Private Lewis N. Mears of Ballardvale was the only Andover man to be captured by the Germans during the Great War.

On October 8 he was one of ten who were out on a scouting party in the Argonne Forest. Boche guns got seven of his comrades and the other three put up a desperate fight. These were finally wounded. Private Mears receiving a wound in the wrist. He dressed his own wound as best he could but while this feat was being performed a machine gun bullet struck his gas mask. As it was at the alert position it saved his life; but he and his companions were soon found by Germans and taken to their camp.

At headquarters he was brought before a German captain, where he was Never in the history of the town has there been such a unitedly get-together affair as was held last Friday night in honor of Andover's soldiers and sailors who have returned from service. The citizens, since that memorable morning of November 11, had seemingly been bottling in their gladness over having the war over and so many of their boys safe. And this overflowing exuberance of spirits was evident on everybody's face, in everybody's manner and actions, Friday night.

Square and Town Hall Gay with People

The old square, so well loved by those who have known it from childhood, was bright with lights and people; while from the town hall came forth the gay sounds of music and happy voices. Uniforms were decidedly "au fait", insignia was studied and learned and few could fail to be thrilled when the long line of Andover men marched down the center of the hall to receive their medals.

The Welcome Home Reception began at seven o'clock and all during those first two hours the square was alive with arriving people. The town hall, more beautiful than ever before, with its red, white and blue, gold and white and laurel-festooned walls and ceiling, was crowded with enthusiastic hosts and hostesses. White arches, bedecked with colored flowers and yellow lights, made a perfect setting for the chief event of the evening; namely, the presentation of the bronze medal to each man who had offered his service to the land he loves.

Army and Navy Men Ready at Nine O'Clock

The Army and Navy men had gathered at their club rooms across the street while the draftees who had not gone to camps because of the signing of the armistice, had assembled in the R. C. O. A. rooms. Captain Philip W. Thomson was in charge of the military men and the parade was led by the eight men who were wounded in action, and were in charge of Sergeant Alex Ness. Ensign Horace Hale Smith was in charge of the

Navy men; G. Roderick Cannon of the draftees.

Such a wealth of cheering and applause greeted this parade as it entered the hall at nine o'clock that the old place fairly burst with enthusiasm and pride.
The long line of soldiers came first and reached to the door; following them came the navy men, sailors and men of the merchant marine.

G.A.R. Men in Uniform

In a place of prominence at the front of the hall were gathered the small group of G. A. R. veterans who had helped to make America the strong, united country which could join in saving the world and humanity. In their blue uniforms these men made a stirring part of the picture. Commander Geo.
W. Chandler, Adjutant Ballard Holt,
James Saunders, E. Kendall Jenkins, Henry Clukey, John Cummings, and Joseph T. Lovejoy were the Grand Army men present.

Welcomed by Chairman Cole

Hon. John N. Cole, chairman of the executive committee, presided and after reading the memorial honor roll and giving the general directions incident to receiving the boys who were about to enter the hall, Mr. Cole expressed the greetings of the Public Safety Committee in a brief welcoming address. He said in part:—

"This outpouring of Andover, representing as it does probably more than half of the homes of the town, evidences that the heart of Andover beats loyally to the call for recognition of the returning soldiers and sailors. This gathering is the greeting of the town to those men already out of service. It is in no sense the full and final expression of the town either to this particular group or to the men who are to come later. It is held in conformity to the program of the central state committee and in harmony with similar preliminary receptions held in many of the cities and towns of the state. The presentation of the medals does not in the least measure the town's gratitude but simply will stand as an expression not unlike that which the little bronze button carries to the old veterans of '61. As bronze ever endures, so the appreciation of Andover will ever endure and find expression for the men who have so splendidly served her in the last two years."

"To express officially the significance of the bronze medal and the town's attitude toward the men who have so well earned it," the chairman then introduced Major Claude M. Fuess of the Personnel Branch of the United States Army, who gave an address, moving and appropriate to the big occasion.

Address of Major Fuess

Our town of Andover, in its nearly three centuries of illustrious history, has had few gatherings more notable, and on occasion more significant, than this.
We have had, during the past months of war, a record of which everyone here is proud. We are proud of the work of our Public Safety Committee, of which you, surgeons, have been the distinguished and efficient chairman; we are proud of the enthusiasm with which our men, women, and children responded to every call for assistance from every agency of relief; we are proud that within our precincts there is hardly a person who has not done his share, be it ever so small, towards the consummation of victory; we are proud that the pages of our annals are unstained by any act of malice, any word of disloyalty, any suggestion of cowardly retreat. But we are proudest of you, soldiers and sailors of Andover, whether officers or enlisted men, whether you enrolled under the stars and stripes or under the banner of some Allied cause; you, who have held aloft the flag you loved and have so staunchly defended your country in its hour of danger.

And the town is proud of you, whether you wear the gold chevron or the silver, whether Fate sent you overseas and into the trenches, or left you here in training camps, willing and ready for sacrifice, but disappointed in your hopes. All honor to those whose fortune it was to go "over the top" with rifle and bayonet and rush across the hell of No Man's Land. Those of you who have done this, and some of you have done it not once but many times, know better the real value of life because you have been so near to losing it. All honor, too, to those of you who, held here against their will, formed a part of that mighty host the news of whose assembling helped to drive the Kaiser from his throne and to lay prostrate the Prussian autocracy.
There is not one of you who would have hesitated if the call to the front had come, not one who would not have gone cheerfully to death, if necessary, in order to protect home and family from the menace of the despot Hun. Wherever you have served, you have all been concerned in the greatest conflict of modern times,—the conflict of truth against falsehood, justice against brutality, might against right, humanity against barbarism. And let us remember that it was because Germany knew that we had, not merely two million or four million such men as you, but six times two million, that she recognized her doom.

Your line is long to-night,—but there are some who are not with us. Of the nearly seven hundred Andover boys who have been under arms, many are still standing guard on foreign soil, and we can offer them no welcome hand. For them, however, the "home fires" are still burning, and will burn until they catch again a glimpse of the lights on the familiar hill.

There are others, alas, who will never join your ranks on this earth, though day call unto day and year after year pass by. These are the immortal dead who, for your welfare and mine, have laid down their lives. Not every one perished on the foughten field or fell amid the roar of musketry. Some succumbed to hardship or were stricken with disease. But we must recognize them all as heroes:—

"Duty is duty, wherever "Tis done, and no man can do more Than, on the testing-time, prepare To prove him conqueror.
Or here or there,—no matter where,
Who dies for Right hath done his share, And shall the victor's laurel wear."

This is an hour of victory; but, even in the time of rejoicing, we shall do well to pause for a moment and do reverence to those absent ones,—as we have done so welcome you home; and we congratulate you with all our hearts.

Medals Presented by Selectmen

Bronze medals, the gift of the citizens of Andover, were presented to the men by the selectmen. As each man went up onto the platform his name was called out by Mr. Cole and he passed on to the center of the stage, to have pinned on by Selectmen Fames, Bowman and Mc-Ternan the symbols of Andover's appreciation for his part. The medals are inscribed on the front "Town of Andover, Massachusetts", with the town seal in the center. On the other side is "Pre-

DECORATED TOWN HALL—LOOKING TOWARD THE STAGE often with those heroes of an earlier day, those soldiers of the Civil War, whose names are carved in our Memorial Hall where every man may read.

But, after all, we are not here to mourn. We are here to exult that you have brought us Peace, with Victory, that you, as soldiers and sailors, have quit yourselves like mighty warriors and have shown yourselves invincible in the fray. What some of you have accomplished, the unforgettable names of Chateau Thierry and Belleau Wood, of St. Mihiel and the Argonne, will carry on to your children's children. Nor do we fail to mention those who served in less spectacular duty, who went down to the sea in ships and guarded our transports safely across the Atlantic. Nothing that we can say to-night can add to the fame of you who "fought for freedom, not glory; made war that war might cease." No words are adequate to speak the honor which we feel. The medals which will be pinned upon your breasts are simply a symbol, a material expression, of the respect which is your due. Although they are artistic in design, they are not intrinsically of great value. But, just as the flag of stars and stripes is something more and finer than the fabric of which it is woven, so these medals are more than the bronze upon which they are stamped. They carry with them the gratitude, the admiration, the affection of an entire community.
They are emblems, signifying the affection of an entire community. They are emblems, signifying that you were enlisted in the cause of justice, sworn to uphold the high principles and ideals of civilization,—that you have represented at its best, the American spirit.

When Napoleon faced his army before the Battle of the Pyramids, he pointed towards the great stone monuments which, for countless years, have stood lonely in Egyptian sands, and said, with that eloquence which so endeared him to his followers,—"Soldiers, forty centuries are looking down upon you!" So we, in our time, say to you,—Sons of Andover,—the men of former days, veterans of Lexington and Saratoga, of Fredericksburg and Shiloh, Revolutionary patriots, Colonial governors and magistrates, are looking down in spirit upon you to-night. They rejoice that you have continued unimpaired the splendid New England tradition, and have added a new lustre to the annals of the old Bay State. They see in you another generation, no less worthy, no less noble, than the patriarchs of old. They are glad that

"Glory, o'er each plain and glen, Walks with thy free and iron men And lights his sacred beacon still On Bennington and Bunker Hill."

Nearly two years ago, on Memorial Day just after we had entered the war, I had the fortune of speaking in this same hall; and I closed by reciting a stanza of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic", which is probably our most stirring call to arms in a great cause.
Now that the "tumult and the shouting" have almost died away, I am reminded of another of our noble hymns, which lays emphasis on the days of Peace and on the duty which devolves on us in supporting America just as truly now as we did in the compelling time of war:—

"O beautiful for heroes proved In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved,
And mercy more than life America! America!
May God thy gold refine, Till all success be nobleness,
And every gain divine."

Houdini Bound So He Cannot Escape

Houdini, the world-known master magician, appearing at the Colonial Theatre in "The Master Mystery," is a living enigma to not only his public, but to scientists, magicians, psychologists. He is credited with the power of muscular control, with the power derived from a secret knowledge of physical leverage, with the power of vibratory control, with the power of dematerialization. To all of which Houdini keeps a provoking and mysterious silence.

Suffice it to say that up to the present date Houdini has escaped from paper bags, zinc-lined piano boxes, packing cases, padded cells, straightjackets, insane cribs, willow hampers, iron cages, a United States mail pouch furnished with a rotary lock belonging to the United States Government, a large football, a large Derby desk with secret locks, a Siberian prison van. He leaped, heavily handcuffed, in zero weather, from Belle Island Bridge in Detroit, Michigan, and released himself under the icy water. After leaping into San Francisco Bay, with his hands handcuffed behind his back and more than seventy-five pounds of ball and chain locked to his body, he released himself, failure to do which, would have caused his death. He escaped from a plate-glass box and did not even scratch the glass. And he has escaped from prison cells in almost every city in America and the most famous prisons in Europe. Also Houdini can pass through a solid wall.

But a scrap of paper is what holds the master magician to the great fifteen-episode Houdini serial by Arthur B. Reeve and Charles A. Logue, which Mr. Rolfe is now producing.

SHUBERT

The musical comedy treat of the season is confidently expected in the announced engagement of Elliott, Comstock and Gest's newest success, "Oh, Look!" at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, next week, beginning Monday, March 31st. For this show, which has captivated New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, has for its stars that delightful trio of youthful entertainers—the fascinating Dolly Sisters and the amusing Harry Fox, who are surrounded by the entire original cast of metropolitan favorites and the chorus singing and dancing beauties characteristic of the New York theatre music shows. The visits of the Dolly Sisters and Harry Fox away from Broadway are so infrequent that their coming is always in the nature of an event, and in "Oh, Look!" they are rediscovered as musical comedy stars of the first magnitude.

The book of "Oh, Look!" is by James Montgomery. Joseph McCarthy has provided some clever lyrics, and Harry Carroll's music is of teasing rhythm and seductive melody. And to this, Robert Milton and Edward Royce, who staged the piece, have invented some original tricks in the feminine groupings, and the performance constantly surprises and fascinates. Like all the shows produced by Elliott, Comstock and Gest, "Oh, Look!" has an atmosphere of wholesome freshness which appeals not only to the tired business man but to his wife, mother and sweetheart.

COPLEY

"Arms and the Man," George Bernard Shaw's comedy which the Henry Jewett Players are to act during the coming week at the Copley Repertory Theatre, beginning Tuesday afternoon, was the first of that brilliant writer's plays to be given in this country. It firmly established his reputation as a playwright, and it remains one of his most successful and most frequently acted comedies. It was given two seasons ago at the Copley, and its revival will repeat its success there.

From beginning to end, "Arms and the Man" is pure comedy. It does not need to be taken seriously. Its hero, Captain Bluntschli, is a strange kind of hero, for he is a soldier who confesses that he cares nothing about the glories of warfare, and he is frequently a coward in battle. He fights simply because he cannot help it, because it is his profession, and he talks with a humor that only a Bernard Shaw hero can give voice to. Not only his conversation, but the dialogue of the entire play, sparkles with a continuous wit.

The action of "Arms and the Man" takes place in Bulgaria, where a series of situations that are equally ingenious and that are filled with characteristic Shavian humor keep one amused from beginning to end. "Arms and the Man" is a play that should be read by all who wish to see it, or who have seen it, on the stage, and should be seen on the stage by all who have read it.

ASSESSORS' NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 41 of Part 1 of Chapter 490 of the Acts of 1909, as amended by Sec. 5, Chap. 198, Acts of 1914, all persons, firms, and corporations, domestic or foreign, subject to taxation in the town of Andover are hereby notified and required to bring in to the assessors of said town ON OR BEFORE THE 15TH DAY OF MAY NEXT, true lists. In case of residents a true list of all their polls and personal estate not exempt from taxation, of which they were possessed on the first day of April in the current year, and in case of non-residents and foreign corporations a true list of all their personal estate in said town not exempt from taxation, which list must be verified by oath as required by Section 43 of said Part 1, as amended by Chapter 294 of the General Acts of 1916.

Under the provisions of Section 42 of said Part 1, as amended by Chapter 515, Acts of 1909, the above-mentioned lists must be in form prescribed by the Tax Commissioner of the Commonwealth. These blank forms may be had at the Assessors' office, or will be mailed to any address upon application.

Section 45 of Part 1 of Chapter 490, Acts of 1909. A mortgagee or mortgagee of real estate may bring into the assessors of the city or town in which it lies, within the time prescribed by the notice under section forty-one, a statement under oath of the amount secured thereon or on each separate parcel thereof, with the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagee. If such property is situated in two or more places, or if a recorded mortgage includes two or more estates or parts of an estate as security for one sum, such statement shall include an estimate of the interest of the mortgagee in each estate or part of an estate. The assessors shall, from such statement, or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate interest of the mortgagee or mortgagee, respectively, in said estates, and shall assess the same accordingly. If, in any year, such statement is not brought in, the tax for that year on such real estate shall not be invalid merely for the reason that the interest of the mortgagee therein has not been assessed to him.

In accordance with Section 41 aforesaid, as amended by Chapter 198, Acts of 1914, all persons and corporations are hereby required to bring in to the assessors, on or before the 15th day of May next, true lists of all real and personal estate held by them, respectively, for literary, temperance, benevolent, charitable, or scientific purposes on the first day of April, in the current year, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of April; such lists and statements to be in accordance with blanks furnished by the Tax Commissioner.

M. S. P. C. C. Annual Report

In the 38th annual report of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children just published, President Grafton D. Cushing emphasizes the imperative need of additions to the Society's invested funds in order that it may meet the steadily increasing demands for its services. The Society closed its last fiscal year with a deficit of about $7,000. Mr. Cushing said that this was due largely to the fact that very few of the Branch offices are self-supporting. With the recent opening of offices in Springfield and Holyoke, the Society's agencies now cover the State. This is the goal that has been aimed at for several years past. Mr. Cushing closed his report with a statement of the need of greater coordination among social agencies to prevent waste of time and effort.

The report of the General Secretary, C. C. Carstens, calls attention to the fact that in addition to its usual tasks, which last year included work with 14,089 children of 4,592 families, the Society had also shared with other social agencies in the important task of "protecting the personnel of the nation's soldiers and sailors from evil sex practices with vicious young women and protecting the foolish and innocent young girl from contact with the depraved." The Society provided two or three patrol officers to assist in this work of protection at the request of the Law Enforcement Division of the War Department. Mr. Carstens also speaks of the necessity for even greater effort in work with neglected children because of the growth of juvenile delinquency during the war period, the

Navy men; G. Roderick Cannon of the drafts.

Such a wealth of cheering and ap-

fairly burst with enthusiasm and pride.

The long line of soldiers came first and

came the navy men, sailors and men of the merchant marine.

helped to make America the strong,

part of the picture. Commander Geo.

W. Chandler, Adjutant Ballard Holt,

James Saunders, E. Kendall Jenkins,

Henry Clukey, John Cummings, and

men present.

Hon. John N. Cole, chairman of the

enter the hall, Mr. Cole expressed the

tee in a brief welcoming address. He said in part:

"This outpouring of Andover, repre-

to the call for recognition of the return-

already out of service. It is in no sense

gratitude but simply will stand as an expression not unlike that which the little

of '61. As bronze ever endures, so the

last two years."

well earned it," the chairman then in-

appropriate to the big occasion.

three centuries of illustrious history, has had few gatherings more notable, and no occasion more significant, than this.

proud. We are proud of the work of our

Public Safety Committee, of which you, sir, have been the distinguished and

enthusiasm with which our men, women,

assistance from every agency of relief;

we are proud that within our precincts

towards the consummation of victory; we are proud that the pages of our

gestion of cowardly retreat. But we are

proudest of you, soldiers and sailors of

hour of danger.

you wear the gold chevron or the silver,

camps, willing and ready for sacrifice,

but disappointed in your hopes. All

and rush across the hell of No Man's Land. Those of you who have done this —and some of you have done it not

lay prostrate the Prussian autocracy.

There is not one of you who would have

you have served, you have all been concerned in the greatest conflict of modern

falsehood, justice against brutality,

barbarism. And let us remember

Suffice it to say that up to the present date Houdini has escaped from paper bags, zinc-lined piano boxes, packing cases, padded cells, straightjackets, insane cribs, willow hampers, iron cages, a United States mail pouch furnished with a rotary lock belonging to the United States Government, a large football, a large Derby desk with secret locks, a Siberian prison van. He leaped, heavily handcuffed, in zero weather, from Belle Island Bridge in Detroit, Michigan, and released himself under the icy water. After leaping into San Francisco Bay, with his hands handcuffed behind his back and more than seventy-five pounds of ball and chain locked to his body, he released himself, failure to do which, would have caused his death. He escaped from a plate-glass box and did not even scratch the glass. And he has escaped from prison cells in almost every city in America and the most famous prisons in Europe. Also Houdini can pass through a solid wall.

But a scrap of paper is what holds the master magician to the great fifteen-episode Houdini serial by Arthur B. Reeve and Charles A. Logue, which Mr. Rolfe is now producing.

The musical comedy treat of the season is confidently expected in the announced engagement of Elliott, Comstock and Gest's newest success, "Oh, Look!" at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, next week, beginning Monday, March 31st. For this show, which has captivated New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, has for its stars that delightful trio of youthful entertainers—the fascinating Dolly Sisters and the amusing Harry Fox, who are surrounded by the entire original cast of metropolitan favorites and the chorus singing and dancing beauties characteristic of the New York theatre music shows. The visits of the Dolly Sisters and Harry Fox away from Broadway are so infrequent that their coming is always in the nature of an event, and in "Oh, Look!" they are rediscovered as musical comedy stars of the first magnitude.

The book of "Oh, Look!" is by James Montgomery. Joseph McCarthy has provided some clever lyrics, and Harry Carroll's music is of teasing rhythm and seductive melody. And to this, Robert Milton and Edward Royce, who staged the piece, have invented some original tricks in the feminine groupings, and the performance constantly surprises and fascinates. Like all the shows produced by Elliott, Comstock and Gest, "Oh, Look!" has an atmosphere of wholesome freshness which appeals not only to the tired business man but to his wife, mother and sweetheart.

"Arms and the Man," George Bernard Shaw's comedy which the Henry Jewett Players are to act during the coming week at the Copley Repertory Theatre, beginning Tuesday afternoon, was the first of that brilliant writer's plays to be given in this country. It firmly established his reputation as a playwright, and it remains one of his most successful and most frequently acted comedies. It was given two seasons ago at the Copley, and its revival will repeat its success there.

From beginning to end, "Arms and the Man" is pure comedy. It does not need to be taken seriously. Its hero, Captain Bluntschli, is a strange kind of hero, for he is a soldier who confesses that he cares nothing about the glories of warfare, and he is frequently a coward in battle. He fights simply because he cannot help it, because it is his profession, and he talks with a humor that only a Bernard Shaw hero can give voice to. Not only his conversation, but the dialogue of the entire play, sparkles with a continuous wit.

The action of "Arms and the Man" takes place in Bulgaria, where a series of situations that are equally ingenious and that are filled with characteristic Shavian humor keep one amused from beginning to end. "Arms and the Man" is a play that should be read by all who wish to see it, or who have seen it, on the stage, and should be seen on the stage by all who have read it.

ASSESSORS' NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 41 of Part I of Chapter 490 of the Acts of 1909, as amended by Sec. 5, Chap. 198, Acts of 1914, all persons, firms, and corporations, domestic or foreign, subject to taxation in the town of Andover are hereby notified and required to bring in to the assessors of said town ON OR BEFORE THE 15TH DAY OF MAY NEXT, true lists. In case of residents a true list of all their polls and personal estate not exempt from taxation, of which they were possessed on the first day of April in the current year, and in case of non-residents and foreign corporations a true list of all their personal estate in said town not exempt from taxation, which list must be verified by oath as required by Section 43 of said Part I, as amended by Chapter 294 of the General Acts of 1916.

Under the provisions of Section 42 of said Part I, as amended by Chapter 515, Acts of 1909, the above-mentioned lists must be in form prescribed by the Tax Commissioner of the Commonwealth. These blank forms may be had at the Assessors' office, or will be mailed to any address upon application.

Section 45 of Part I of Chapter 490, Acts of 1909. A mortgagee or mortgagee of real estate may bring into the assessors of the city or town in which it lies, within the time prescribed by the notice under section forty-one, a statement under oath of the amount so secured thereon or on each separate parcel thereof, with the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagor. If such property is situated in two or more places, or if a recorded mortgage includes two or more estates or parts of an estate as security for one sum, such statement shall include an estimate of the interest of the mortgagee in each estate or part of an estate. The assessors shall, from such statement, or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate interest of the mortgagee or mortgagor, respectively, in said estates, and shall assess the same accordingly. If, in any year, such statement is not brought in, the tax for that year on such real estate shall not be invalid merely for the reason that the interest of the mortgagee therein has not been assessed to him.

In accordance with Section 41 aforesaid, as amended by Chapter 198, Acts of 1914, all persons and corporations are hereby required to bring in to the assessors, on or before the 15th day of May next, true lists of all real and personal estate held by them, respectively, for literary, temperance, benevolent, charitable, or scientific purposes on the first day of April, in the current year, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of April; such lists and statements to be in accordance with blanks furnished by the Tax Commissioner.

M. S. P. C. C. Annual Report

In the 38th annual report of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children just published, President Grafton D. Cushing emphasizes the imperative need of additions to the Society's invested funds in order that it may meet the steadily increasing demands for its services. The Society closed its last fiscal year with a deficit of about $7,000. Mr. Cushing said that this was due largely to the fact that very few of the Branch offices are self-supporting. With the recent opening of offices in Springfield and Holyoke, the Society's agencies now cover the State. This is the goal that has been aimed at for several years past. Mr. Cushing closed his report with a statement of the need of greater coordination among social agencies to prevent waste of time and effort.

The report of the General Secretary, C. C. Carstens, calls attention to the fact that in addition to its usual tasks, which last year included work with 14,089 children of 4,592 families, the Society had also shared with other social agencies in the important task of "protecting the personnel of the nation's soldiers and sailors from evil sex practices with vicious young women and protecting the foolish and innocent young girl from contact with the depraved." The Society provided two or three patrol officers to assist in this work of protection at the request of the Law Enforcement Division of the War Department. Mr. Carstens also speaks of the necessity for even greater effort in work with neglected children because of the growth of juvenile delinquency during the war period, the

Splendid Response

All Andover that couldn't possibly get into the town hall last Friday evening wanted to. All that could get there probably never saw so many of their neighbors at one time, in one place, of one mind. Also all who were there have probably never seen an Andover atmosphere so full of good-nature, happiness, and all sorts of gladness spirit reflecting itself in face, expression, and interest.

This was as it should be, and all did what was designed when the program for the evening was laid out, in accomplishing a get-together of Andover that made Friday, March 21, a memorable day. Designed as a curtain-raiser for that event when all the boys will together combine in making the full group of men from the service who have carried the Andover banner so splendidly in the last two years, there was probably not a person having a part in the Friday reception who didn't rejoice that the affair had a peculiar distinction all its own that made it much more than a forerunner. It was the "forerunner" in so far as its relation to the soldiers and sailors back from the war is concerned, but as a program in tying Andover people together, it must pass as an event that needs no second affair to make it complete.

The news story tells of all the things that were done, and of the various committees who did them, but the intimate acquaintance that the writer had with the splendid workers who made so much of a success compels a word of comment in addition to the news story. The rare decorations of the hall could never be entirely paid for in the dollars and cents involved, for they represent not only the artistic conception of the Farley Decorating Company who had the job to do, but they represented the interest and enthusiasm of Chairman Fames of the Board of Selectmen and the others who worked so faithfully with him in seeing that all the little details were so carefully worked out. Few people have seen twenty-piece orchestras on the town hall stage or have had many opportunities to enjoy that sort of music in Andover. Here again we must say not only the cordial word of appreciation to Mr. Millington who provided the music, but express satisfaction over the interest taken by Fred L. Collins and the sub-committee who looked after the music. To serve refreshments to four times as many people as the hall could comfortably accommodate was no light task, yet Caterer Rhodes and his associates did the bustling part of this work in such a way as to bring a large measure of satisfaction and make everybody feel that although there were some discomforts and some waits, there was an efficiency of handling most creditable. Of course even then, however, the serving of these refreshments would not have been possible had not that splendid group of ladies been the big contributors that they were. Cake, cake, and more cake poured into the town hall, loaf after loaf, until it seemed as if every home in Andover had been sharing in the contribution, and as if it were not enough to have secured this big contribution from the housewives of Andover, the ladies followed it up by seeing that it was served in great but abundance to everybody there and the surplus sold at a good profit to the Public Safety Fund.

Supplementing all the things that were going on at the town hall was the unique layout of activities in nearly a half-score centers covering practically all of the activities in the central part of the town. "Open House" was the order of the day, from the oldest organization of the Masons down to almost the youngest organization of the Knights of Columbus. Music in four of the different halls made those the center for the young folks' activities, particularly dancing, but there was no less enjoyment found in the other places where card-playing and sociability helped to make the evening the success it proved to be.

Of course, the central feature of the entire evening was associated with the boys themselves who were marshalled into the hall under the direction of George Dick, who has taken great care in checking and keeping track of the men from the time of the first enlistment up to the present moment. It was a fine group who made up the two hundred and twenty men gathered there for the partial recognition prepared, and the recognition was up to the standard of the men themselves. Seldom has a more finished address been made in Andover, in its definiteness of point, its clear emphasis of the sort of ideals for which Andover stands, its fine expression of the things which the American soldier should represent, than that by Major Fuess. It was a gem that will not be excelled in any of the more pretentious celebrations that either the town or the state may have in connection with the home-coming of the soldiers and sailors. One by one the medals passed through the official hands of the selectmen to the breasts of the boys themselves, and the bond was fixed that made the town's recognition have full expression.

A splendid response was made by everybody to the call for funds to carry out this work, and here again we must mention the two live wires who led the canvass so well in face of some difficulties. The canvass was organized and looked after by Wm. C. Crowley and Harry Sellars, and right well did they do their work, assisted by a half-hundred earnest helpers covering the entire town.

Unfortunately in the closing hours of the canvass the solicitors ran out of buttons so that much of the later work was seriously handicapped. This situation has now been remedied and there should be a prompt response to supplement the work already done in order that committees that are to be chosen for the later event may find themselves in possession of all funds necessary to make the closing affair as satisfactory in all its features as the opener has been. If you have bought a button already, be satisfied with your button, but send another payment for it, in order that the fund that now exists may be carried up to the full measure originally set. This means about a thousand dollars more and how nice it would be if this could come from a thousand contributors rather than a hundred.

After all, there is but one real recognition to be made and that is to the big, broad town itself, which "tied itself together" just as it has ever since the war began.

Marriage

MARTIN—REA

The marriage of Miss Jennie Marion Rea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Orris Rea of North Andover, to Alfred Hopkins Martin of Chelsea, took place in the latter city on Saturday evening, March 22nd. Rev. William S. Nichols of the North Parish Church officiating. The wedding was to have taken place at the bride's home, but was prevented by illness.

The bride looked very pretty in alabaster blue georgette, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin received many beautiful gifts. They will make their home in Heath, Mass., in the Berkshires, and have the best wishes of their many friends.

Christ Church Notes

The special Lenten services on Sunday nights at 7:30 are being well attended in spite of the unpropitious weather which has been the rule lately. This coming Sunday night, Rev. J. H. Cabot, Ph.D., of the Church of the Advent, Boston, will be the preacher. He saw service in England in the days of the fighting, as a worker among American troops in London particularly, and experienced the rationing of food when that side of life was a most serious problem to meet.

The children's services have increased in attendance each Friday. Let us hope the coming vacation week will not cause forgetfulness about this weekly Lenten opportunity.

A little more than half of the Honor Roll of Christ Church have received their honorable discharge from the military and naval service of their country. Some thirty-five are still in the ranks.

Punchard Alumni Welcome Home

At Miss Ella Holt's home on Maple avenue, Wednesday evening, the Punchard Alumni executive committee decided to postpone the date of their annual reunion to Tuesday evening, May 13th. The reason for this is that they are planning to have a big "Welcome Home" night for their boys who have been in service, and they hope to have everybody present. They are planning to make this meeting the best ever, with a banquet, entertainment and dance. The executive committee consists of Myron E. Gutterston, chairman; Harry Sellars, president; Miss Ethel Hitchcock, secretary; Fred Cheever, treasurer; Edmond E. Hammond, Arthur Lewis, Paul Abbott and Miss Ella Holt.

FINE ENTERTAINMENT

"A Carnival of Nations" at South Church Big Success. Under Auspices of Women's Union

Tuesday evening's performance of "A Carnival of Nations" in the South Church vestry was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. The variety of costumes with their bright gay colors; the excellent chorus singing, as well as good solos and duets; the significant spirit of patriotism back of the affair, to say nothing of that veritable wonderland where good things to eat were sold, all conspired to make a pleasant and memorable evening.

Mrs. Arthur Bassett was chairman of the committee in charge and she, with her helpers, was largely responsible for the success. The whole thing showed evidence of much hard work and careful planning. The transformed primary department room which was banked solidly with American flags against which khaki pup tents were set, from which the ice cream, candy, cake, sandwiches, punch and popcorn balls were sold over counters, was the result of H. A. S. Read's ingenuity and decorative powers. Pine trees here and there made one feel that he was out-of-doors in a big camp overseas where all the allies were coming to the canteen for refreshment and good cheer.

The committee who assisted Mrs. Bassett were: Mrs. H. A. S. Read, Mrs. Charles J. Francis, Mrs. Hugh Bullock, Mrs. Maude L. Farlow, Mrs. W. H. Gilson.

The entertainment began by several piano selections played by Mrs. Edmund T. Haynes. Then followed the play which was interrupted by an intermission when everybody went to "the canteen" for refreshments.

The program of "A Carnival of Nations" was:

Six entertainers:
Miss Grace Francis, Mrs. Frank L. Brigham, Mrs. F. G. Moore, Miss Marion Abbott, Miss Mabel Carter, Miss Elsie Holt.

England:
Mrs. Frank L. Cole, Charles J. Francis.

Plans for May Breakfast

Scout Training Help to Soldiers

"I have just lately returned from ten months' service in France, and what I saw there makes me even a firmer believer in the Scout movement than before. The intelligence officer of one of the regiments at the front told me that if his detachment of men had all been Boy Scouts, as one or two of them had, three-quarters of his work in training them would have been eliminated."

Quoted in "Official News," Boy's Life for April.

"The Turkish women are discarding their veils."
"I suppose that is their idea of facing the new situation."—Baltimore American.

Open House in Clubs

Then came a general good-time celebration in all the clubhouses in the square. Dancing to Millington's orchestra in the town hall was a great pleasure. This was not uncomfortably crowded because so many other good places were available. In H.C.O.A. hall in the Army and Navy Club, Clan Johnston hall, and Pilgrim hall was fine lively music; while much cordiality and hospitality was to be found in the rooms of the other organizations: St. Matthew's lodge, A.F. and A.M.; Andover lodge, I.O.O.F.; Andover Council, Royal Arcanum; Lincoln lodge, A.O.U.W.; Knights of Columbus; Sons of Veterans; Garfield lodge, Knights of Pythias, and the Andover Club. This meant that those who did not care to dance might play cards, and if they did not wish to do either there was plenty of entertainment to be found in just watching others having a good time. There was not a dull moment for anybody.

Refreshments, More than Enough!

Ice cream was served in the lower town hall by Caterer T. E. Rhodes, and cake, more cake than one had ever before seen in his life, was furnished by the many generous ladies of the town. For once in their lives, anyway, the soldiers and sailors must have had all the good cake that their hearts could desire. This was proved by the fact that there was lots and lots left over, and this was sold to those who wished both to help out the cause and to take home a good cake for the future. The boys were served first and they went down stairs at once after receiving their medals. They were the guests and in every way their pleasure came first. Henry A. Bodwell was the chairman of the refreshment committee and he was assisted by the following helpful persons who came early in the afternoon and stayed at their post during the evening to be sure that everybody was heartily served: Mrs. William H. Higgins, Mrs. David S. Lindsay, Mrs. Harry A. Ramsdell, Mrs. Margaret Kimball, Miss Gorman, Mrs. Colver J. Stone, Mrs. George M. R.

Holmes, Mrs. P. B. Whittemore, Mrs. Frank W. Grout, Mrs. John A. Collins, and Miss C. Madeleine Hewes.

The ladies who served wore white dresses with red, white and blue sashes, and they contributed a touch of home and much warm hospitality to the evening's pleasure.

Reception in Charge of Public Safety Committee

An executive committee from the Public Safety Committee had general charge of this first "Welcome Home". They were: John N. Cole, chairman; Henry A. Bodwell, in charge of refreshments; Harry M. Eames, in charge of decorations; Fred L. Collins, in charge of music; Alfred E. Stearns, William C. Crowley is the treasurer of the Welcome Home fund and has charge of all money collected. George Dick has done all the clerical work and he is the one to notify if any names were omitted from the above list of returned men.

The Andover Public Safety Committee is composed of the following men: John N. Cole, chairman; John C. Angus, secretary; C. W. Holland, treasurer; Charles E. Abbott, M.D., Henry A. Bodwell, John H. APPEAL FOR BOOKS

One Hundred and Thirty Books Sent from Memorial Hall Library. More Needed

In response for the request for books for the men in service, about 130 volumes have been brought to the Memorial Hall Library and promptly shipped to Cambridge for distribution. Many more are needed, and magazines can be used. Dr. Mawson writes, "If we could secure them, we could utilize ten thousand magazines each week at this office alone."

If the home bookshelves resemble Mother Hubbard's cupboard, that need deter no one from sending a book to a soldier. The Andover bookstore is selling volumes withdrawn from its circulating library at twenty-five cents apiece. Visit the Bookstore with a quarter in your hand and then bring your purchase to the Memorial Hall Library to help along a good cause.

HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN?

Have you forgotten, you whose cheeks were loud, Whose tears were ready when they went away? When they return again you will be proud. Again your eyes will glisten—but today?

We saw them go, a host divinely fired To holy sacrifice. To-day they are Boys dashed with strangeness, mind and body tired, And home is far away—terribly far.

Far, far away, the confidence and praise, Near, oh so near, the softly smiling art Of painted lips, the thirst of aimless days, The bitter thoughts that fester in the heart.

Stretch out your hands across the severing sea— Bid them keep faith with those who still are true— Lest when they come again, their faces be Graved with sad lines, and turned aside from you.

The Free Church Society at its meeting last Tuesday evening voted to become incorporated with the church in one organization. A committee was appointed to perfect arrangements. This same committee were to consider the question of an assistant pastor and to report in one month.

The services of the Free church will be of special interest next Sunday. In the morning at 10.30 o'clock seven young men from the Lawrence Y. M. C. A. will speak and assist in the service. At seven o'clock in the evening there will be an illustrated lecture on "Alaska" which the public are invited to attend.

The once-a-month "Church Night" meetings are much enjoyed by the attendants, and are increasing in participants and fellowship. The work of the young people in the social hour is much appreciated.

The Sunday School has enlisted in the "Tercentenary Campaign", with a monthly contribution to missions.

AT PUNCHARD

Thirty at Dancing Class—Baseball Prospects Good—Vacation Today

Last Monday evening the third dancing class was held in the Punchard Hall. There were more present than at the other classes, about thirty persons being there. Among those present were: Misses Mary Robertson, Edna Woodhead, Mary Hart, Mary Murphy, Hazel Buck, Marion Matthews, Marjorie Peck, Ada Pitman, Pauline Sanderson, Kathleen Hart, Isabel Hatch, Anna Brady, Messrs. Harry Payne, William Dalton, Daniel Allen, Bernard Sullivan, Everett Lawrence, Robert Partridge, Kenneth Coleman, Richard Carter, Frank Alley, Joseph Lovejoy, Joseph Sanborn, Gilbert Stone, Geoffrey Nicoll. Music was furnished by Watson's orchestra.

Coch Lovely called out the candidates for the baseball team Tuesday afternoon, and about twenty fellows responded, although a great many more are expected after the term exams. Coach Lovely expects to have a winning team this year and has some good players from last year's team. Holland ought to prove a good pitcher, after his experience of last year. Captain Payne will be the standby in the infield. Partridge and Coleman are doing the catching with Dyer as a substitute.

The Spring exams were held Thursday and Friday.

The Spring vacation commences today and lasts until April 7th.

THINK OF THE MONEY YOU CAN SAVE ON SHOES

Clarence J. Bloeker of St. Louis, Missouri, writes, "I have a pair of shoes with Neolin Soles and have used them for two years. I think they will last another six months."

Mr. Bloeker also recommends Neolin Soles for their comfort and water-proofness.

It is a remarkable fact that Neolin Soles cost no more than others that give only ordinary wear. You can get them on new shoes in many styles for men, women, and children—and they are available everywhere for resoling, too.

And look at the money you save—because you need fewer pairs of shoes with Neolin Soles. Remember—these soles are made by Science to be especially tough and durable. They are manufactured by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

sought. Everything of value was seized, even his uniform. A rigid examination was held wherein the captain sought to find information regarding the Americans. Upon Private Mear's refusal to tell anything he received two slaps in the face.

A four days' trip took him from the front to Treves where he spent over a month in the hospital. They received good medical care, rotten food, coffee made from acorns, sawdust bread, and much soup.

But fortunately the armistice came and with it the welcome Red Cross train bringing comfort and friendly help to Private Mear. Proper medical treatment and civilization and material benefits came to him. But it was too late to remedy permanently his wounded wrist and his right hand will be crippled for life. They went to Vittel in France, where he received treatment.

He sailed for home January 28, 1919, from Bordeaux, arriving at Camp Merritt February 11. February 27 he received his discharge from Camp Devens.

The Bradlee Mothers' Club will hold a special meeting on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Louis G. Buck, Marlboro Road, at 7:30 o'clock. All members are urged to attend.

The Spring of Peace

When shall awake the birds to sweeter song, When, to the hours, a rarer joy belong, Than in that Spring when mankind's hatreds cease
And over earth shines dear the light of peace?

When shall the fields in fuller bloom rejoice,
The passing wind give truer, nobler voice, Than in the Springtime when war's flag is furled?
And budding hope revives a we-racked world?

When shall a season of man's life be blessed With more delight, his senses more caressed Than in that Spring, forthcoming from dismay, Aglow with promise of a brighter day?
LURANA SHELDON
New York Times.

Private Lewis N. Mear who was wounded and captured by the Huns reports that the Germans expected to win the war in two years. Quantities of German watches had been made to be sold in celebration of this future event, and they show only one of the ways in which this country had "counted their victories before they were hatched." On the back of the watch case in raised letters were the words: "England, Russia, France and Italy, 1914-1916." The Kaiser had not counted on America!

What could be more patriotic than to plant trees and dedicate them to soldiers who have given their lives for their country? Arbor Day this year will be a nation-wide observance and the planting of young forest trees during the next few weeks will be in preparation for this Day. From the office of the State Forester in Boston, comes a plea which is practical and helpful. Certainly the state is doing its part and Andover may as well profit by getting ready a heritage for its future children.

The time has arrived for everybody to get busy and plant trees. It is believed a larger acreage of forest trees will be set throughout this good old Bay State during the next eight weeks than have ever been set in an equal length of time before. Work of digging the trees at the State Forester's nurseries at Barnstable and at the State Farm, Bridgewater, began last week. Assistant Foresters Cook and Morris have been perfecting plans for weeks, and are now ready for doing things. Thousands of trees will be planted daily in the southern part of the State this week, and the work will be under way all over the State by April first. Seventy-five thousand are to be set out on Nantucket; a million or more on the newly-acquired state forests, of which there are five; while state institutions and private parties will plant over a million more.

If you intend to plant this spring, perfect your plan, order your trees, and get ready for business, as right now is the proper time. If the State Forester and his organization can assist you, let us know. Trees are likely to be scarce, and the supply may give out, hence get your order placed.

Nothing will more enhance the value of run-out and worthless lands, and at the same time give wholesome and healthy employment, than the work of tree-planting. Once planted and established, where is there a more satisfactory investment? They grow while you sleep, do not have to be fed or milked night and morning, and demand practically no attention. It has not been uncommon for white pine to sell for $300 to $600 an acre on the stump the past year. There are thousands of acres scattered over the State that should be planted. Four year transplants are to be had from the State Forester's nurseries at $8.00 a thousand. First come, first served.

If you are interested in any way, simply write or call on the State Forester, F. W. Rane, State House, Boston, Mass.

A friend sent this in for "The Pats and Knocks Column" and I suppose it belongs here.

Fast Tigers Vs the Strong Clippers

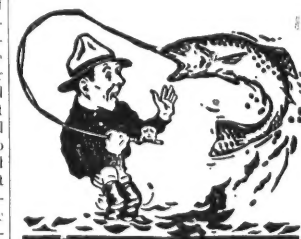

The young Tigers opened the season by defeating the strong Clippers, Wednesday afternoon, by the score of 10 to 8 on Franklin Park Field. It was a very close and interesting game throughout. Hudson, Green and Dentremon starred for the Tigers, while Comeau, Dunnels and Saunders played well for the Clippers. The defeated Clippers will again meet the Tigers next Wednesday at the same place. The umpires deserve special thanks as they were so fair in their decisions. They were Perry of Phillips Academy and Forrest Farris of Methuen. Time 2 hours, 15 minutes.
